Know Your Rights If a police officer stops or arrests you anywhere in Washington State, your State and Federal Constitutions give you the authority to tell that officer:

- I will not perform field sobriety tests, the horizontal gaze nystagmus eye test, or a portable breath test at the roadside or anywhere else
- I want an attorney, and help contacting one
- I do not consent to you searching me, my vehicle, my belongings, my residence, or any other place or thing
- I will not answer your questions or speak to you except for identification purposes
- I will take only a BAC DataMaster breath test at the police station or a blood test, unless my attorney tells me not to take the test
